In no instance were these hours found to be under 12. The entire course of training at that date was in all schools in this country two years or under (the one exception was the training school of the hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, which adopted the three-year course in 1904), a condition which should be considered in discussing the working hours of students. Ten or more hours a day in addition to class work and study might be endured for a period of two years without obvious or immediate injury to health. The same hours carried on for three years would prove a serious strain upon the student's physical resources, inflicting perhaps irreparable injury. The conclusions reached in this first study of working hours of students were that they were universally excessive, that their...
