As has pretty much anyone who has ever existed, good and evil are things that I have thought about throughout my life. Most everyone has things they consider good or evil, either to themselves and/or publicly. In high school I was asked to write a five paragraph essay on the question: Do you think that human beings are inherently good or evil? Everyone else who answered the essay said humans were either good or evil, and had a back-up explanation for their decision. I simply answered no. My back up explanation was that human beings were not either inherently good or inherently evil, but five paragraphs didn t allow me to do it justice. The following includes my subsequent thoughts that I have had on the issue throughout the years, and it also includes a discussion of the thoughts others have currently, and have had, throughout the years. I do this by talking about faith, religion, psychology, philosophy, and ethics, and how my thoughts on these issues have changed over time through learning, particularly in how they relate...
