Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Battle of Gettysburg On this day fifty years ago a hostile army of 70,000 veteran soldiers, commanded by a great General, was in Pennsylvania - near to the capital of that State - 50 miles northwest of Baltimore; and there was a sudden fear in many great cities and consternation in all the country. All men knew that this invasion represented the confidence of the Confederate commander in his power to conquer peace by winning in the North a great battle, the price of which would be the dissolution of the Union and the recognition of the independence of the Confederacy. That was the meaning of his presence in Pennsylvania. Only the Army of the Potomac could come between the country and that bad consequence. Between these two armies there was to be hard fighting therefore, and it began in the forenoon of July 1 out on the pretty country roads to the northwest of the town of Gettysburg. Gen. Lee, assuming that he was nearly alone in Pennsylvania, and knowing that he was in a land full of fat cattle and good horses, had his forces much scattered for the most practical reasons; but when he beard that the Army of the Potomac was near he sent urgent orders to all his divisions to concentrate at Gettysburg - for some were to the east, some to the north and some to the west of that town. On that day the Army of the Potomac was moving to the northward - the First Corps in advance and near to Gettysburg, the cavalry in front. Gen. Buford of the First Cavalry Division had been sent...
