Children. --In an average annual strength of 1, 466 children there were 1, 514 admissions to hospital and 59 deaths, being in the annual ratios of 10327 and 4024 respectively; compared with the foregoing year there is an increase of admission rate of 4476 per 1, 000, and of the rate of mortality of 29 per 1, 000. Of the deaths no less than 23 were due to diseases of the digestive system, for which affections there were 410 admissions, 305 admissions occurred from fevers, 199 from debility, 188 from respiratory diseases, 29 from nervous affections, 26 constitutional diseases, and 357 from other causes. Sanitary Conditions. --Surgeon General C. D. Madden, Principal Medical Officer, reports that the sanitary state of the barracks and their surroundings have been carefully looked after during the year. Deputy Surgeon General Chappie points out the unsatisfactory sanitary condition of Fort St. George owing to the crowding of the numerous buildings required for the garrison, arsenal, and a number of Government offices into so small a space, that the moving population belonging to these offices represents about 2, 000 employes, and that in his opinion it is only the sea breeze which saves it from becoming a hotbed of disease. He considers the barracks at Fort St. George most unsuitable for the requirements of the climate of Madras, and points out that they were built in blocks many years before the present rules of construction were understood. The artillery guard room at...
