The alders were separated more widely from each other, and grew more in scattered clumps, which sometimes formed green islets, circled with a fringe of scarlet, wherever their red roots were washed and polished by the flowing waters. Now the stream would sweep amid tussocks of long waving grass, crowned here and there by a broad branching elm, whose branches dipped in the tide, that whirled in deepening eddies where its projecting roots overhung the water. Now it rippled for a few yards over a pebbly bottom, and then, turned by a spit of yellow sand--thick trodden with the tracks of deer, of wolves, and not unfrequently with those of bears and panthers--it would slide round a point of land black with the shade of lofty pines.
